

Introduction to Political Theory and Philosophy

GVPT 241

Fall 2022

Freshmen Connection

Description

Like the theoretical component of every science, political theory is the practice of providing provisional explanations to political phenomena. This function is the empirical aspect of political theory. But unlike other scientific theories, political theory has a normative function as well. It also makes claims about how concepts and values should guide political policy and action. For example, many governments around the world claim to be democratic in some way, even some authoritarian regimes that are clearly undemocratic. Some of them are being disingenuous. But others are working with a different conception of “democracy,” and these must be debated. The practice of political theory is 1) to understand how the concepts and values of politics are understood and utilized by citizens and political actors, and 2) to make arguments about how these concepts and values should be understood and used to guide political action. The USA was founded in part on the fundamental equality of all people. Does this mean that the practice of slavery should be tolerated by the state? Only the practice of political theory can answer this question.

This course is an introduction to a curated collection of topics and concepts in the practice of political theory. The primary goals are to get students to understand how the practice of political theory can explain and guide the practice of politics, and to get students to love political theory. Anyone who has opinions about the world is a political theorist, even if it is from your armchair. This course will make you a better one.

- Students must keep on top of the reading, which will range from 40 – 80 pages per week.

- Students are required to complete reading assignments and attend class with questions and comments, and any other work prepared.
- Students will be assessed in weekly online discussions.
- Students will be assessed by 5 online quizzes throughout the semester.
- Students will also be assessed by a short writing assignment, and a group project.

Course-Specific Policies

The lateness penalty: 10% of assignment grade after 1 day late, 5% after second day, 2% after third day, and then 1% of assignment grade for each additional day.

Communication Policy: Angelina is the first points of contact for course-related queries. For all email communications, please allow 24 hours for a reply, and up to 48 hours over the weekend.

Absence Policy: The University has returned to its normal absence policy, meaning students are able to miss one class meeting without penalty. All other absences, medical or otherwise, must be accompanied with a note from an authority figure (doctor, employer) in order to be excused. If you are unwell and cannot attend your section, all effort must be made to inform Angelina or myself in advance. All absences due to religious or official athletic engagements must be discussed in advance, so that proper accommodations can be made, if necessary.

COVID-19 Policies: If you have symptoms of possible COVID, or test positive, you must contact UMD HEAL (www.umd.edu/HEAL, 301-405-4325) to report your case and receive instructions. If you must isolate, you will not be penalized for missing your Discussion Sections. You are also asked not to attend Lectures, which will be livestreamed and recorded and made available through our ELMS classroom.

If I fall ill or am travelling, then lectures or Discussion Sections will be conducted on Zoom.

Get Some Help!

Taking personal responsibility for your own learning means acknowledging when your performance does not match your goals and doing something about it. I hope you will come talk to me so that I can help you find the right approach to success in this course, and I encourage you to visit tutoring.umd.edu to learn more about the wide range of campus resources available to you. In particular, everyone can use some help sharpen their communication skills (and improving their grade) by visiting ter.ps/writing and schedule an appointment with the campus Writing Center. You should also know there are a wide range of resources to support you with whatever you might need (see go.umd.edu/assistance), and if you just need someone to talk to, visit counseling.umd.edu or one of the many other resources on campus.

Most services are free because you have already paid for it, and everyone needs help... all you have to do is ask for it.
